

The Maji Bucket

- a no touch, foot operated handwashing station

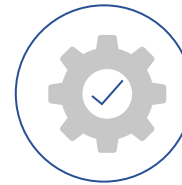

A Ghanaian invention to promote safe handwashing practices to curb the spread of the Covid19 virus.

Foot operated

No touch

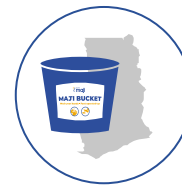

Simple, low-tech innovation

Made of locally available products

Highly affordable

Bulk manufactured locally in Ghana

Watch assembly video

QR code links to the Maji Bucket assembly video

Watch the assembly video

Project Maji believes in outsourcing technology for social good. Designed to be constructed locally and cheaply with readily available parts, we encourage communities to assemble their “Maji Buckets”. Our friendly and enthusiastic team are ready to assist and train key community members in how to do this, who in turn can train their own wider community. The “Maji Bucket” can be a transformative tool in basic virus prevention.